LOYOLA FOOTBALL TRAINING CAMP OPENS SATURDAY

College football gets its 1968 start at Loyola College Saturday as some 50 candidates open training camp on the Loyola field for a 16-day period.

Head coach George Dixon and assistants Tony Pajaczowski, Judd Porter, Ken Dixon and Pat Duffy will supervise the two-a-day practice sessions from Saturday to Sunday, September 15.

Dixon replaces Bob Lincoln as head man on the coaching staff. Porter, an ex-Montreal Beaver and a native of Oklahoma, Duffy, who coached Verdun Invictus to an Eastern Canada juvenile championship last year and ex-Alouette great Pajaczowski are all new faces on the staff.

Candidates for the Varsity teams will be housed in military barracks-type accommodation in the gym during the camp.

Athletes will be up at 7 a.m. and will be on the field at 8:30 for 1½ hour workouts in the morning. This will be followed by an afternoon meeting and exercise session under Loyola trainer Ed Nowalkoski, followed by another on-the-field practice session at 4 p.m.

Coach Ken Dixon stressed: "We'd rather have a boy quit during the practice period than later on in the season during a key game."
